These three Golden State wedding venues offer "I dos"

BY LAURA ECKSTEIN JONES

West Rooftop, Andaz San Diego

Those seeking an all-encompassing SoCal wedding experience should head to the boutique hotel, which brings together the best of all worlds: city, surf, sand and incredible views. The destination offers awe-inspiring vistas from its West Rooftop (the largest open-air space of its kind in the downtown area with uncovered and covered areas). It's sure to be your venue of choice ($3,000 ceremony fee). A specialist will guide you through catering choices and room-block rates, and provide connections to vendors like day-of coordinators. You'll also be set with privacy curtains upon request, infused water stations and more. Oh, there's an East Rooftop here too. sandiego.andaz.hyatt.com

A sunset ceremony offers a dazzling display of everything from the Transamerica Pyramid to Coit Tower.

Sky Deck, Loews Regency San Francisco

Situated in the heart of the city's Financial District, close to the Ferry Building and Union Square, the sophisticated hotel has endless appeal for weddings thanks to a variety of venues. But the highlight is the 40th-floor Sky Deck: It looks out toward the Golden Gate Bridge and the Transamerica Pyramid, and is ideal for ceremonies of up to 100 guests (from $2,000). A package gets couples the option of heading to the southern Sky Deck for celebratory drinks (from $4,000). An on-site expert, ceremony rehearsal, chairs and a backup option should inclement weather make an appearance are included. The hotel's executive chef also serves up several dining options (from $195 per guest), with delectable entree picks such as seared filet mignon with boursin-potato puree and hen-of-the-woods mushrooms. A true treat for the senses. loewshotels.com/regency-san-francisco

Oue Skyspace, US Bank Tower

Downtown's tallest building has plenty going for it: 45-foot glass spire and its title of "most beautiful building west." It also houses the city's hottest new location. A portion of the $6,500 for a private, unobstructed portion of the Pacific Hollywood Hotel up to 300 guests seated ($80 per bride and groom) long lists, a full bar, the 69th and 70th floors ($30,000) offer terraces spread across more than 13,000 square feet of white marble and gold interior and minimalist exterior spaces, and holds up to 800 standing total and 200 seated per floor. Ride high! oue-skyspace.com

Simple exterior decor on the 69th floor allows the cerulean scene to shine.
